We appreciate the threat posed by lab-grown diamonds. I don't want to give them the privilege of calling them diamonds. Diamonds are natural,. We will then market our diamonds in terms of their provenance and of the story behind the diamond.

BOTSWANA'S MINING SECTOR

Botswana's mining sector has established itself as one of the most lucrative in the world, with its modern-day mining industry beginning in the early 1970s. Initially focused on diamonds and copper-nickel, the country's mining landscape has since expanded to include a diverse range of minerals, including silver, soda ash, salt, coal, and gold.

THE PAST AND PRESENT

Botswana's modern-day mining started in the early 1970's with diamonds and copper – nickel, and the industry graduated from a mining destination with 2 mines in the 1970's to a mining destination of choice with more than 10 large mines for diamonds, copper, nickel, silver, soda ash, salt, coal, and gold.

THE FUTURE

The Government of Botswana is committed to encouraging further investment in the exploration and exploitation of non-diamond minerals to broaden the country's investment base and reduce reliance on high-quality diamond deposits.
